REPORT OF THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

The School Committee of Belmont, in compliance with the law, and the long established custom, will submit his annual report of the schools in said town. I have but few remarks to make in regard to our schools, the past year. I visited the summer schools in town the required number of times, making such suggestions to teacher and scholars as they seemed to demand. I was not able to visit the winter schools at their commencement on account of a long and protracted sickness; but visited the most of them at their close. There has been twenty three schools in town, and the most of them have been eminently successful. Good order has been maintained and the advancement has been very good in most of the schools. I think they have attained a more elevated point in the scale of perfection than was manifested in our schools last year, yet our schools fall far short in the scale of perfection of what they might and ought to be. And why is this? Much is said of the qualification of teachers; yet this is not all. Every teacher should have an intimate acquaintance with educational means, a full and complete understanding of the best methods of teaching, also a tact in the management and government of schools. There is a duty of the parents that far exceeds that of a teacher; the early training of their children at home. They should not only teach them to obey at home, but should teach them to respect, and obey their teacher at school; also infuse into their minds a love of study. I am sorry to say there has been some of our schools in town which none of the parents have visited during the term; yet they were ready to talk of the imperfections of the schools, and allow their children to watch the imperfections of the teacher regardless of all good qualities. I have known some scholars to leave school because they could not go over their studies in a hurried and imperfect manner. Many are apt to think that after we were erected a school house and placed a teacher therein, our duty ends. But it is not so? What man is there among us who would employ a man and send him into his field, or workshop, and there let him labor for three months without once going to see, whether he was doing his work in a satisfactory manner. Such an one could not be found. Shall we say by our conduct, that the cultivation of the immortal mind is of less importance than mere manual labor? Our common school system is one of the noblest institutions of the State. It requires the united, the earnest, the cordial support of all our citizens. Every man whether rich or poor, should feel that there is a moral obligation resting upon him, to do all he can to promote the cause of education. When this is done, our schools will soon attain to the high standing which they ought and if those that now are on the reticive stage of life will take this interest, when they pass off the stage of action, "Generations yet unborn will rise up and call you blessed."

DISTRICT No. 1. Summer and winter term by the same teacher. This was her first attempt at teaching. But the summer term was a profitable one to the scholars that attended regularly. She was very anxious to adopt the best mode of government, and labored hard to give good instruction to those under her care. Winter term. Did not visit this at the commencement on account of sickness. But was sorry to learn that a few, gave no heed to rules, or commands, but did as they liked, as though wisdom and authority were lodged with them; this somewhat retarded the interest of the school. Parents ought to take special pains to secure the attendance of their children at school during school hours. The teacher manifested an ardent desire for the improvement of her school. With the exception above mentioned, the school was orderly, and made fair progress.

DISTRICT No 2. Summer and fall term taught by the same teacher. Summer term was a fine school, with an excellent teacher. Thoroughness of instruction, characterised each recitation at the closing examination. Order good. Fall term was visited but once. At this visit the school appeared well, and bid fair to be a good school.

DISTRICT No 3. Summer term. Teacher a fine scholar, and had a rare faculty of imparting instruction to her pupils. Some of the scholars made good progress; others manifested little, or no interest consequently did not make much progress in their studies. It is very hard for a teacher to get up a great degree of interest in her school, without the co-operation of her pupils.

Winter term. Taught by Miss Laura E Chase. This was her first attempt at teaching; she is keen and energetic, and ranks high in the first class of teachers. She performed her duties faithfully, and labored earnestly, for the good of those under her care. The instruction was thorough, and progress good, in all the branches pursued. Order highly commendable.

DISTRICT No 4. Summer term. This is quite a hard school to govern, but the faculty that the teacher possessed of gaining the good will of the scholars, and of awakening new zeal and interest in the cause of common education, made it a profitable term. At my last visit, each recitation was characterized by thoroughness of instruction. Progress good. Order highly commendable to both teacher, and scholars.

Winter term. First five weeks taught by Warren A Luce. I did not visit this school on account of sickness. I am sorry to say that some of the large boys were very ungentlemanly in their conduct toward their teacher; therefore he wisely preferred to withdraw from the school, rather than have any of his scholars deprived of the advantages of attending school. We are aware that some teachers in small, well disposed schools, may meet with good success; when in larger, or more difficult schools, they may fail entirely. The remaining four weeks was taught by Louise A. Eaton. This teacher came to her school, aided by much valuable experience; she having taught nine terms before in this district shows that she gives entire satisfaction. Owing to the failure of the teacher that preceded her, she labored under many disadvantages. She had a rare faculty of imparting instruction to her pupils. A stirring active spirit will awaken life, and thought in the pupils; and enhance instruction. It would be hardly possible, for any teacher, to accomplish as much in eight or ten weeks, as this teacher accomplished in four weeks. There was a thorough and rapid improvement in all the branches pursued.

DISTRICT No 5. Summer and winter term. This is the largest school in town. Both terms were taught by experienced teachers, who are too well known to need special recommendation.

DISTRICT No 6. Summer and winter term taught by the same teacher. These were profitable terms. The kindness, and interest of the teacher, readily gained the good will, and interest of the scholars. In all the classes, a good degree of improvement, was apparent. The classed in reading and writing were worthy of commendation, for the improvement they had made, while under her instruction.

DISTRICT No 7. Summer term. This teacher has had but little experience in teaching notwithstanding she labored most assiduously for the improvement of the school; and gave universal satisfaction. The kind feelings that were manifested by the scholars, was very praise worthy. Discipline, and improvement good.

Winter term. Visited and reported by J. W. Wells, Esq. Taught by S. Amanda Weeks. Found it a very quiet school. The recitations indicated that the teacher aimed at thoroughness in teaching just principles, which is of the first importance in our public schools. Miss Weeks has a quiet way of governing her pupils, and the general appearance of the school was good.

DISTRICT No 8. Summer term. At my first visit the school appeared well disposed, and deeply interested. The teacher exhibited her usual aptness in teaching. At my last visit, the same unison and harmony prevailed, as was manifested at the commencement of the term. One most pleasing feature of the school was thoroughness, manifested in every branch of study pursued; especially in Algebra, Arithmetic, and Grammar. In this, as well as in most of our schools, many of the scholars have a very imperfect knowledge of reading, that fundamental branch, of a good education.

Winter term. A thorough and practical teacher. Your committee was highly pleased with the closing examination. The quiet movement and prompt answers of the scholars, in all their recitations, especially the improvement in reading and arithmetic, clearly demonstrated, that correct principles, had been thoroughly taught.

DISTRICT No 9. Summer term. I was not fully satisfied with the qualifications of this teacher, but decided to grant her a certificate. At the commencement of the term, I was very much displeased with the order of the school. I made a few suggestions to both teacher, and scholars; and was pleased to see at my last visit that both had profited by them. I found the order better and also found, that the scholars had made fair progress in their studies. Every teacher should have a correct idea of a teachers work, before they attempt to teach.

Winter term. Visited and reported by J. W. Wells Esq. Taught by Mrs Mary Clough. Perhaps justice may require me to say, that the attention of this school had been diverted in another direction, for a few days previous to its close; which may to some extent, account for its general appearance at the time of our visiting it.

It was apparent that teaching of first principles had been too much neglected; greatly to the detriment of the school. No pupil can advance in any science, with any great advantage to himself, till its rudiments are well understood; and teachers should feel it imperative upon themselves, to know that their pupils thoroughly understand first principles, before they are permitted to make further advancement.

DISTRICT No 10. Summer term. This teacher has had but little experience in teaching; but she succeeded well, it being a small school of young scholars. The classes were badly arranged in mental arithmetic, there being more classes, in this school of ten scholars, than I found in our largest school in town. This fault is not wholly to be attributed to the teacher, there being several kinds of Text Books used; there ought to be more of a uniformity of Text Books in many of our schools.

Winter term. This school was not visited by me at the close owing to a misunderstanding of the Prudential Committee. "The P. Com., stated that he visited the school at the commencement, and at its close; he also states that the teacher kept good order, and gave good satisfaction. Improvement, very good."

DISTRICT No 11. Summer Term. This school was composed of three small scholars; yet the teacher succeeded in exciting an interest, and trained them to habits of order, and studious attention. She evidently devoted herself entirely to her work; and succeeded well. The closing exercises were very creditable, showing that both teacher, and scholars had done their duty.

Winter Term. As I was not notified of either the commencement, or the close of this school, I take it for granted that the Prudential Committee, and teacher, have taken the affairs of the school into their own hands; therefore I have no report to make of this school.

DISTRICT No 12. Winter term only. This is a model school. The teacher had a correct idea of a teacher's work, a profound knowledge of educational means, a full understanding of the best methods of teaching thorough in discipline, and a clear comprehension of duty to her pupils. Advancement very good. This District has had but one term of school a year for several years; yet I found some of the best scholars in this school of any in town. This is to be attributed to the interest manifested by parents, scholars and teacher combined.
